Dedication

In proud recognition of the loyalty of two of our school faculty, The Class of '42 dedicates this Year Book to Mr. Francis X. Kelly and Mr. Robert Mitchell, who are now enrolled in the armed forces of our country. We feel confident that both men will be an asset to our country as they were to our school. We wish them safety and good fortune until they once again return to the familiar portals of Weymouth High.

Uncle Sam Looks South

By ALICE TOOMEY

Today everyone realizes that the solidarity of our relations with South America is of primary importance. On this depends the establishment of a unified bulwark against the enemies of America. And yet, the story of our relations with our southern neighbors has been a story of coolness and even indifference. We have lived beside these countries for about two hundred years before even an expression of friendship existed. Uncle Sam was too busy establishing a strong central government to bother with lands which lay outside of his own domain.

It was not until 1822 that the Monroe Doctrine, the first recognition of American unity, was put before the world. This doctrine marked the beginning of three distinct phases of Pan American relations. When Monroe came into office, the United States, because of increasing population and wealth, was enjoying an unaccustomed prestige among the nations of the world. Therefore, since a European alliance, composed of Russia, Austria, and Prussia, was considering the entreaties of Spain to recover her colonies in the New World, our government immediately issued the famous Monroe Doctrine. By this we warned Europe to keep out of the affairs of the republics in the Western Hemisphere. This Doctrine of "America for Americans" has been the underlying policy of the United States in foreign affairs ever since.

But how did the Latin American countries respond to this course taken so independently by the United States? Enthusiastically, at first, since the Doctrine guaranteed their safety against European aggression. This feeling of security, however, gave way to suspicion, after a more careful study of the Doctrine revealed that the United States itself had made no assurances of non-interference. Throughout most of the nineteenth century, these fears proved groundless, for the Doctrine remained simply a pledge that Uncle Sam was prepared to defend the peace and safety of the Western Hemisphere.

In the years that followed, our government reached its present continental limits. Although the Monroe Doctrine was challenged several times during this period, Europe finally realized that the United States was powerful enough to resist any foreign intervention in the New World. Wishing merely to increase our trade with Latin America, the Secretary of State, James G. Blaine, in 1889, called the first Pan-American conference. But he overlooked the fundamental necessities of a united hemisphere.

After the Spanish-American War, the United States became a world power, and without experience as such, blundered in foreign relations. We adopted a new policy toward the Latin American countries, causing them to view with suspicion the aims of Uncle Sam. Following this policy, we forced Cuba to annex a clause to its Constitution which gave us the right to maintain the peace and order of the island. Since we had aided Cuba in securing her independence from Spain, we felt that we were entitled to this privilege.

At the beginning of the twentieth century, energetic Theodore Roosevelt became President. He believed in the old adage, "Speak softly but carry a big stick and you will go far." By his policy of the "big stick", the President declared that the United States would step in to prevent disturbances in Latin America. In this way he sought to remove every excuse for European interference.

One result of "big stick" policy was the construction of the Panama Canal. The Spanish-American War had convinced Roosevelt of this vital need. With his usual impetuosity, he immediately recognized the new revolutionary government and the canal became a realization. Now the United States naturally became interested in the stability of the governments in the vicinity of Panama. When various small countries in the Caribbean and Central America were threatened with bankruptcy, we restored their finances to good condition, lest the European creditors take control.

American business men soon realized the great opportunities open to them in South America. To benefit these men, our government undertook a policy which became known as "Dollar Diplomacy". This meant the use of diplomatic relations with Latin America for the advancement only of our commercial and financial interests. To safeguard American business investments, the United States government landed marines, controlled elections, collected the customs, and organized police forces in the Caribbean republics.

This era of "Yankee Imperialism" was brought to an end in 1927 when American marines invaded Nicaragua to settle an election dispute. Such action brought severe criticism from the people of the United States and convinced our government that this policy of domination was not only unjust to our Latin American neighbors, but harmful to our own interests as well. Thus, our government decided to undertake a new policy, based on mutual friendship and co-operation, which would be of advantage to both North and South America.

As the first step in better relations, Herbert Hoover, upon becoming President, inaugurated the Good Will Tour. Under him the marines were withdrawn from Nicaragua and plans were made for their withdrawal from Haiti and San Domingo. But it remained for Franklin Roosevelt and his able Secretary of State, Cordell Hull, to impress Latin America that Uncle Sam was sincere in his desire to be a "good neighbor." Carrying out his promises of good-will, Roosevelt repealed our intervention clause in the Cuban Constitution and withdrew the last of the marines from Central America and the Caribbean. Another important step in the building of continental unity was the Pan-American conference held at Montevideo in 1933.

Since then, conferences at various South American cities have strengthened the ties between North and South America. When the first warnings of the present war were heard from Europe, delegates from twenty-one American republics assembled at Lima, Peru, in 1938 to draw up a league for the Americas. The result of this conference was the Declaration of Lima in which the nations pledged to defend the union of the Western Hemisphere against foreign invaders. As a result of these conferences, both cultural and political understanding have been developed.

Thus, we have seen the three changes in the attitude of Uncle Sam toward his southern neighbors. First, he was a disinterested onlooker; then he became a superior big brother; and now he is the good neighbor of Latin America. Let us make this Good Neighbor Policy more than simply another phase in our relations with Latin America. We of the Western Hemisphere must organize a pattern of unity which will render us impregnable to any foreign aggression.

President Wilson, addressing a Pan-American conference, aptly described the perfect relationship which should exist between the Americas when he said:

"All the governments of America stand, so far as we are concerned, upon a footing of genuine equality and unquestioned independence. The states of America are not hostile rivals, but co-operating friends . . . in a very true and deep sense a unit in world affairs, spiritual partners standing together, quick with common sympathies and common ideals. . . . "

Independence and Interdependence in the Americas

By MARJORIE MOONEY

Pan-Americanism, the aim of men with ideals, to bring about a secure peace, is on the lips of everyone. Many have formerly felt, through careless thought or disinterest, that Latin America was a small, unimportant neighbor, worthy only of exploit. The truth is that its economic condition exerts a tremendous influence upon us, and not only must this interest be favorable to us, but it must be based also upon the willing co-operation of these people. These countries form a conglomerate nation made up of every sort of human temperament. While the United States has been called the melting pot of the world, the whole of the Americas might be fittingly classified. Each of these republics to the south has a perplexing problem, for different types of executive and financial systems exist and there are many races, diverse in custom and prejudice; as a result of this, each one has a separate opinion of us and must be dealt with accordingly. It is necessary, therefore, to recognize that in order to preserve our individual independence and foster good-will, we must realize the vital importance of interdependence and work with these nations toward that goal.

Naturally, the necessity of a common front for military and naval defence is at present the thought in the foreground, but the economic front must not be overlooked. Part of the natual antipathy of the Latin Americans for us in the past is the result of scheming American adventurers and soldiers of fortune. These men have developed mines, oil fields, et cetera, at the expense of native labor, taking the profits elswhere, without regard to the feelings and needs of the local population. In the face of these past actions, even though our policy has improved, it is surprising how faithfully Brazil has been adhering to our suggestions and our attempts at co-operation. The mutual benefits resulting from our trade with Brazil are amazing. These benefits could and should be repeated in the other countries. On the whole, the Brazilians regard us as their friends. This condition, however, has not been prevalent in the other countries of Latin America, and may we thank Senor Oswaldo Aranha, the Foreign Minister of Brazil, for supporting us and furthering our cause, notwithstanding frequent neglect by our tactless officials.

In the case of the tropical and sub-tropical regions of Central and South America, we consume a fairly large part of their exports, though not so much as we could. In the temperate regions, such as Argentina, there is a surplus of many of the goods that we produce here. Unfortunately, an increase of such imports would augment that surplus. Heretofore, Germany and other European nations consumed a great part of this surplus, but Germany can no longer buy and has also forcibly removed most of the other European consumers from the market. This, in itself, is a cause not only of banding together in the Western Hemisphere to solve economic problems, but also of producing a firm, united front against the aggressors that are stalking the world, making hemispheric interdependence a necessity.

Carlos Dávila, ex-President of Chile, suggested the basic idea for the Inter-American Development Commission. Its method, already begun, is to start new industries in South America which will not compete with ours and for which we can supply a large market. By purchasing these goods and by shifting our buying from Asia, Europe, and Africa to South America we can help the Americas to be more self-supporting, and, at the same time, establish greater friendship and trust among the American republics.

Another of the agencies contributing greatly to hemisphere solidarity is the Export-Import Bank. The practice of this agency is to loan money to American firms for a specified project. This may include the building of industries or transportation systems which will strengthen Latin America economically and bring us more closely to the people by working for them and with them to help us both. Although Latin America is not the only part of the world thus favored, most of the loans tend more and more to concern her. There are already many instances of useful work being done there through this support.

The Office of Co-ordinator of Inter-American Affairs, recently formed, was intrusted to Nelson Rockefeller. He, in turn, allowed a great deal of responsibility to fall on the shoulders of his highly capable assistant, Carl Spaeth. This office has advanced our interest considerably; as a result of which, a greater understanding is being brought about by interchange of students who can disseminate the many advanced theories. In addition, magazine articles, moving-pictures, radio broadcasts, and round-table discussions, both here and in each of the countries, give the people a more unbiased idea of the life, customs, and problems of their neighbors. Where there is understanding, there is sympathy; where there is sympathy, there is peace and co-operation. Nothing can be more conducive to mutual understanding then the travel, meeting, and conversation of tactful, sympathetic, and broad-minded citizens of various countries. Far-sighted men like Bolivar, Hull, Keith, and Aranha are the idealists who help make democracy the far-reaching and tolerant system that it is.

We in the schools shall do well to follow the example of these intrepid international prophets as we advance to the status of voting citizens who will shape the course of world affairs; for we, the people of the United States, must lead the way, not by force, but by suggestion and voluntary aid in furthering interdependence in the Americas to make us all more independent of the rest of the world.

Theme Song: The Star-Spangled Banner

Good evening, students of Weymouth High, alumni, and friends. This is the voice of Jimmy Calderwood coming to you from Station V. V. V. (Vigilance, Valor, Victory) in the tower of Weymouth High School over the Red, White, and Blue Network. This is a "March of Time" dramatization based upon facts already published in Time (as it flew by), in Life (as we have lived it), and in the Reflector (as we have read it) and sponsored by Uncle Sam, the world's safest bet for real freedom.

Now let me turn you over to Janitor Carleton Perry, who will bring to you the first portion of our "March of Time" program. Come on in, Carleton.

Commentator Carleton Perry: Hello, everybody! This is Carleton Perry.

September, 1938: Clump! Clump! Hear the bewildered freshmen move about the corridors, locating home room numbers amidst "ohs" and "ahs". The doors close; all is quiet; a new school year is under way.

November: Clickety-click! That's Bertha Butler tapping her way to popularity at the Freshman-Senior Party, the last of its kind to be given in W. H. S. Others starring tonight are Cecelia MacDonnell and Jane Connell.

Flash "Oh, fight Maroon and Gold, ye sons of Weymouth bold," and "Mid Weymouth High's soft lawns and pines a cross of fairest gray." As students move up and down the corridor, the words and tunes of these two new songs composed by two Weymouth graduates, Mr. John Ghiorse and Mr. Norman Loud, are sung in undertones, hummed, or whistled.

Flash The lights of the auditorium dim, and on the screen flashes the General Motors' motion picture, showing how safety can be gained by sane pedestrians and by sensible drivers.

February, 1939: Amid the thundering applause from the spectators, the W. H. S. grapplers receive the coveted Class A wrestling championship at Tufts college.

Flash As the footlights go on, the curtain rises, and a hush falls over the audience, the Weymouth teachers present their annual production. This year it is entitled "George and Margaret."

April: Enthralling the audience with her charming voice, Miss Portia Stanton leads the W. H. S. in the operetta, "The Chimes of Normandy."

Flash The students settle themselves in their seats as an illustrated lecture on the "Old West" is presented. The lecture proves to be entertaining as well as informative.

May: Weymouth High School is host to Southeastern Massachusetts League of School Publications, an organization sponsored by Prescott B. Brown. The friends of the Reflector are entertained by local performers.

May: Once again the auditorium is filled to capacity as the final curtain falls on a most successful performance of "You Can't Take It With You," presented by members of the Senior Class.

June: Some with tears in their eyes, others with smiles on their faces but all with determination in their minds, the class of '39 receive their final diplomas amid the strains of their beloved Alma Mater.

You have just listened to Janitor Carleton Perry, bringing you the high points of interest in the school years 1938-1939. We now present Janitor Holbrook, who will comment on the 1939-1940 school year at Weymouth High. Step right up, Mr. Holbrook.

Commentator Holbrook: Yes, sir, Jimmy Calderwood. Let me carry our radio audience through the activities of that sophomore year of the Class of '42.

October, 1939: The entire High School is today amazed by the scientific "liquid air" feats of General Motors' John Sloan. His success in interesting his audience can be vouched for by the "ohs" and "ahs," the open mouths, and the starry eyes of the amazed group.

Thanksgiving Day: Weymouth High School's brilliant football team, captained by Mario Gatto, crushes its traditional opponent Hingham on the Hingham field by a well earned 6-0 score. This game marks the close of a super season for Weymouth.

February, 1940: Our fine mixed glee club, adorned in appropriate Japanese costumes, surprise the students by previewing Gilbert and Sullivan's light opera, "The Mikado," which is to be presented in the W. H. S. auditorium February 16th, Doris Goodwin charms the audience with a solo.

Special ! ! April: Seniors and grads alike enjoy a delightful evening, waltzing and jiving to the strains of Baron Hugo's sweet and "solid" music.

May: The annual Senior Play tonight scores its traditionally fine success by presenting "Tovarich".

June: At last its come! Vacation! The sophomores accompanied by the freshmen are enjoying themselves today at an outing at Nantasket. The Lovell Bus Company has provided transportation for the rollicking and noisy sophomores.

Thank you, Mr. Holbrook. Here comes Janitor Puopolo, breathlessly striding into the studio. Were those juniors of 1940-1941 holding you outside the door?
Commentator Puopulo: No, sir! They hustled me up those stairs to be sure that the facts of that year are given to the radio audience.

Here we are, folks, at the main entrance of old W. H. S. this morning of September 9 th. Wait a minute, wait a minute, folks — there it is! The first bell of the new school year. Look at that stampede. There is nothing slow about those juniors.

September: This afternoon Weymouth High opened its 1940 football season by downing a good Norwood team 14-7. The weeks roll by, Oct. 3, 10, 17, 24. In quick succession the Maroon warriors ride over Swampscott, Belmont, North Quincy and Brookline.

October: Tonight, folks, hopes for an undefeated season are high in Maroontown for this afternoon a stubborn Quincy team was decisively beaten.

November: Hold on your hats, folks. Weymouth 45—Hingham 0 and an undefeated season for the Weymouth gridsters.

December: W. H. S. loudly fêtes the Class C football champions, undefeated Weymouth, at a Victory Dance now in progress in the boy's gym. Among the idols present we see Johnny Delory, Don Jackson, Jim Wheeler, all Juniors. The Merlinites provide snap to the music to help the celebration.

December: Listen to that hilarity in the auditorium. Hear it? Sure you can, for Bruce the Magician is proving that the hand is faster than the eye.

Flash Weymouth High gridsters are en route to Washington D. C. The people of Weymouth, in recognition of its great football team's record, have contributed to make the trip possible.

Flash Here they are, radio listeners, the long awaited returns of the Class of '42 elections: Stan Sulis, president; John Delory, vice-president; Catherine Anderson, secretary; Carol Cole, treasurer.

May, 1941: 1942's Senior Class — now Juniors, are "cutting the rug" — or should we say, the gym floor — at the long awaited Junior Party. "Beanie" Striano has kept the juniors and teachers screaming with laughter all evening with his antics especially in the style show and suitcase rose. He was a hula girl in the style show. Now the group seek to relax with a little dancing, after hearing "Doc" Watson's original "Truth or Consequences," and we do mean original. But who couldn't relax to Johnny Hoffman's music?

June: Your reporter is now speaking to you from the deck of the S. S. Steel Pier en route to Provincetown with the juniors or rather the new seniors or should we say juniors and seniors? The graduating class is along with us you see. My time is running short I see, so for a thorough report of this trip look up some of my shipmates. I should like to suggest Jane Connell.

* * * * * *

O.K., Mr. Puopolo. Mary Bates will bring you the fourth section of our "March of Time" program.

Commentator Bates: For four years now I have been watching these young men and women in their various activities.

December, 1941: Tommy Beal's youthful orchestra "swings it out" at the Victory Dance tonight. The gym is packed with the honor guests, the football team, and throngs of rooters and admirers, all intent on having a good time celebrating their choice of the all-American high school team.

Flash DECEMBER: Today President Roosevelt addresses a joint session of Congress asking for a declaration of war against Japan. He declared the date, December 6, 1941, will "live in infamy", "the attack on Pearl Harbor must have been premeditated for weeks, even months," and that America and democracy will gain the inevitable triumph, "so help us God", with the people's aid.

DECEMBER: The sixth period is abruptly interrupted by the ring of the passing bell. Our amazed and bewildered students and faculty rush to their homerooms, where Mr. Whittle curtly orders, "On the next bell go directly to your homes and stay there." An air raid alarm has been sounded along the Atlantic seacoast.

DECEMBER: Sweaters and letters are presented to one of the outstanding football teams in the state—Weymouth. Richard Bailey receives a trophy for his being the team's most improved player. Co-Captains "Footsie" Cavallo and Jim Wheeler, the most valuable and best scholar and best sport respectively, also receive awards. Football movies, taken of the team in action, close this successful banquet.

DECEMBER: Mr. Prescott B. Brown is the uproarious climax to a hilarious evening of style shows and baby shows in which Harriet Sewell and William Striano have starred. Santa Claus (Mr. Brown) has distributed the joke gifts with a loud voice as the Senior Christmas Party ends.

JANUARY, 1942: Air raid drill as a precaution against such disaster has been brought into effect at Weymouth High School and today inspectors came to witness a practice drill.

Flash W. H. S. is now offering first aid classes to boys, girls, and teachers to prepare us should disaster strike.

FEBRUARY: Movies on incendiary bombs find an appreciative audience in the student body of W. H. S. Pouring sand on an incendiary is found to be the best and most convenient way.

FEBRUARY: Proud parents and happy students gather in the auditorium to witness the Weymouth High School Glee Club's Musical Revue. One of the most talented singers ever appearing in a W. H. S. production, Cecilia MacDonnell, thrills the audience with her soprano voice as she sings "Till the Lights of London Shine Again," surrounded by an impressive bombing background. One of the outstanding features of the Revue is Jane Connell's realistic presentation of a dialogue concerning Adolph Hitler. The colorful finale, "The Star-Spangled Banner", is inspiring to every American patriot present. A stirring poem on democracy written by the Glee Club's musical director, Mr. John Lyons, read by Malcolm Dudley brings a most successful performance to a close.

Flash It seems fitting at this time to announce that we miss seeing the familiar faces of the former Miss Abbott and Mr. Kelly in school these days. Mrs. Francis Abbott Whipple has left to assume the duties as a housewife. Mr. Kelly is marching along in the United States Army. We salute you, Mr. Kelly. Good luck and happiness to both of you!

APRIL: The Senior Prom gets under way with snappy jitterbug music and then the slower strains of music for those who are less energetically inclined. The peppy orchestra and the girls in filmy gowns with their ardent young partners create a festive atmosphere for this big event.

MAY: The Senior Class Play, is presented in the high school auditorium which is filled to capacity by an expectant audience and each young actor does his part toward making the drama a success.

JUNE: Graduation day at Weymouth High School and the Senior Class proudly takes its place in the foreground. In the morning sunlight the class marches to their seats and hear the program. With diplomas in hand, the class rises to sing their Alma Mater song, "The Cross of Gray", and after the benediction march out again.

In the late afternoon is the banquet, and there the class prophecy is read. This is followed by a grand march, which opens the reception, a colorful happy event. Here classmates dance together for the last time.

Part II

And now, ladies and gentlemen, I introduce to you as guest commentator, Harry Caldwell, who will summarize for you the corresponding period for Weymouth Vocational School.

Commentator Caldwell: Thank you, Jimmy Calderwood. It is a pleasure to be with you tonight.

SEPTEMBER 1939: The steady flow of clammering feet into the Sheet Metal department, which has been underway for only a few years, indicates the popularity of this course.

DECEMBER: The skillful dribbling of the basketball up and down the floor after school every night under the coaching of Mr. Booth, aids in the successful season.

MAY, 1940: A rumbling bus load of thirty printers from the printing department enjoys an annual trip. This year the destination is the George H. Morrill and Norwood Press.

Time Marches On

SEPTEMBER, 1940: At the departure of Mr. Booth, the teaching vacancy is filled by Mr. Klay.

Flash The clammering of feet can be heard in the school as a defence course is started. Many of the boys tramp over from the high school, after a studious day, to take this course, which runs from 4 P. M. until 11 P. M.

Flash Back and forth in the various rooms wander visitors at the annual exhibition to view notebooks, drawings and articles fashioned by the boys. By the number of people milling about, the occasion is a success.

DECEMBER: The coaching of the basketball team is now under the direction of Mr. Nelson. This year the team has an average season, winning about half of its games.

MAY, 1941: Again a group of printers crowd into a bus for the annual exhibition. This year they are travelling to Tileston and Hollingsworth Paper Manufacturers, the Christian Science Monitor, and the Boston Envelope.

MAY: The cracks of the ball against the bat and the yelling of the crowd are of no avail this year in bringing success to the baseball team. Too many of last year's players have already found jobs to call them from school duties.

Time Marches On

SEPTEMBER 1941: The vacancy in the teaching staff caused by the transfer of Mr. Swan to the High School is filled by Mr. Pollard.

Flash Many sparkling and blinding lights attract attention to the new machine which has been installed to prepare boys for defence jobs.

DECEMBER: The Senior Christmas Party is a success by the sounds of hilarious laughter during the entertainment. Lively music and refreshments furnish a happy climax.

FEBRUARY, 1942: The bell rings. Many boys, under the supervision of Mr. Whittemore, assume their respective positions as air wardens in the school's air raid drills.

MAY: Every day Mr. Mahn is placing seniors in defence positions. The group who graduate will not be large.

Thank you very much, Mr. Caldwell. So ends our "March of Time" for tonight. Now for a final, and vital message from our sponsor, Uncle Sam. To win this war our forces must have tanks, guns, planes. They must have an enormous number of tanks, guns, planes. Only co-operation among producers, laborers, and consumers, and, most important of all, money for Uncle Sam can produce these arms. We, as well as those working on defence jobs, must help. How? By buying United States War bonds and stamps as often as, and as generously as, we can. One stamp, one bond, cannot buy one plane, one tank, or even one gun for our valiant fighters; but millions of stamps, millions of bonds, purchased by millions of people, can. So let's all be among those millions of buyers who will help Uncle Sam's acorn—War Bonds and Stamps—grow into Uncle Sam's oak—Victory.

Class Motto: Vigilance, Valor, Victory

The Final Page from Betsy's Diary

Dear Diary,

Graduation Day has come, and I want to take this opportunity to say, "Hat's off to the class of '42, and to the undying patience of our teachers". More than this I want to say, "Hat's off to good old Uncle Sam, and our flag. may it still be waving over W.H.S. for centuries to come."

Class Prophecy

Class Prophey

One day, while wandering over the site of the ancient city of Delphi, my companions and I discovered an interesting crevice in the rock. From the crack, a filmy white vapor arose, a curious vapor which seemed to have about it that which dulled our minds and gave to us a peculiar feeling of the supernatural. We decided that this was the famous ho. spring over which, in ancient times, the famous Delphi Oracle had stood. One of the more adventuresome of our number ventured to sit on a broad stone by the crevice; and revealed to us, as had priestesses of old, the fate of our former classmates.

ZARVEN ALEMIAN

After holding an all-American berth for three years straight, "Zarvie" is now back at Weymouth High as a coach of football. It was there that he received his first experience.

HERMAN PRATT

Herman has his own farm now, and rises early every day to feed his large collection of farm animals.

WALTER PRATT

We hear Walter has joined the Navy. The members of W. H. S. wish him the best of luck.

ROGER PRAY

Roger has one of the jobs he always admired. He is a truant officer.

MARION QUIMBY

Marion likes to nurse uniformed men. She is now in the hospital room at Sing Sing.

WILLIAM QUINLAN

Bill is pounding a beat in East Weymouth Square. He can be seen there almost every day.

EDWARD QUIRK

Eddy is at a farm training for the Boston Braves Baseball Team.

NORMAN RICKER

Norm is the manager of the Westland's Sporting Goods Store in Columbian Square.

MARION ROBERTS

Marion is still as conscientious as ever. She is in the employment of a business concern in Sacramento.

MARJORIE ROBERTS

Margie liked French so well in W. H. S. that she decided to teach it in school.

THERON ROBERTS

Ted is teaching at the Braintree High School. His favorite subject is "What's Wrong with Weymouth High School".

HENRY ROCHE

Henry has become the head chef at Ciro's in Hollywood. As a side line, he runs an escort bureau for elderly ladies.

BARBARA RODGERSON

Barb has accomplished her ambition. She is now chief Comptometer operator for the Mutual Life Insurance Company.

LOUIS RUBBO

Louis is the owner of a chain of gas stations. His wife takes care of the accounts.

WILLIAM RUXTON

Bill has taken over the control of the Ruxton Express Company.

VIRGINIA SAFFERIAN

"Jo" owns a clothing store where only the best can be bought.

GERALD SALT

Gerry is now happily married and owns a garage in South Weymouth. He reports that business is fair.

ROBERT SARGENT

Bob is in the Army Air Corps.

MARY SARNO

Mary's fondness for history has persuaded her to write a book on public events.

FLORA SCARPELLI

If you are in want of a good book, go to Flora. She is now Weymouth's foremost librarian.

BERNICE SEVIGNY

Bernice's skill as an artist and interior decorator has gained for her the occupation as window dresser of a large Boston clothing store.

HARRIET SEWELL

Harriet has become famous as writer of the column "The Problems of Young Love and How to Solve Them".

FRED SHEEHAN

Fred is another fellow who began his career in W. H. S. He is now veteran first baseman with the St. Louis Browns.

WILFRED SHELLEY

Will is displaying his bright smile on billboards, advertising for Wrigley's Spearmint Gum.

EVERETT SLOAT

Everett is now part owner of a dairy with high ambitions of being complete owner soon.

LOUISE SMITH

Louise is a Red Cross First Aid Instructor. She received her first training at W. H. S.

PAULINE SMITH

Polly is working at the Town Hall but she still eats lunch at W. H. S.

DORIS STENBERG

Doris is a very successful secretary to the head of a large Boston concern.

CAROLYN STONE

It is of little wonder that Weymouth Hospital patients are getting better under the private care of Carolyn, who can use those beautiful dimples to the best advantage.

WILLIAM STRIANO

"Beany" is still trying to explain to his shipmates how he got such a nickname. Yes, he is now in the Navy. His hobby is roller skating on the poop-deck.

STANLEY SULIS

Stan is president of the Weymouth Merchant's Association as well as the owner of a store.

ROBERT SWAN

Bob is an instructor in the Army, teaching the boys to fly at a well-known California field.

DONALD TAYLOR

Don can be heard weekly over the radio giving his hilarious views on "Aids to the Ladies." It has been rumored that Don is Red Skelton's new radio rival.

HELEN THIBEAULT

Helen's happy nature has gained for her a well-known name in the business concern of Fisher and Son.

FRANCES THOMAS

Franny is secretary to her former boss, Mr. Kresge.

GERTRUDE TIERNEY

Gertie is a famous speaker. She is at present touring the country and lecturing on "How to Win Friends and Influence People".

EDNA TIRRELL

Edna has found these northern winters much too cold, and has moved to Florida.

FLORENCE TIRRELL

Florence, who was fond of English, has written two books on English authors.

VERGIE TOMPKINS

Vergie is secretary to a prominent businessman of Boston.

ALICE TOOMEY

Alice is now dean of Bryn Mawr College. Nothing but the best for Alice.

ROBERT TORMEY

Bob is now manager of the World's Champion Wrestler. He gathered his experience managing the W. H. S. teams.

JANE TOWER

When Jane was at Weymouth High, she had a slight weakness for sports. She teaches physical training in the grammar schools.

JOHN TRAVIS

John has just broken into the moving-picture business. He is hanging pictures around the house for his wife.

BARBARA TURNER

Barby started her life career as a nurse, working in a big New York hospital.

IRENE VICKERY

Irene is living in Florida. Her work is gardening. The oranges she exports are delicious.

ELVA VOIGT

Elva has become a grammar school teacher in a neighboring town.

CHARLES WAKEFIELD

Charlie is manager of a large chain of stores, under the name "Pa's Pantry."

DAVIS WATSON

"Doc" is a professor of physics at M. I. T.

ROBERT WATSON

Bob finally had his wish. The President has appointed him Ambassador to the Court of St. James.

MARGARET WEBBER

Margaret is working as a secretary to a very successful lawyer.

ARTHUR WEIR

"Art" bought out the Kresge stores a few years ago. His stores are so prosperous he is now ready to retire.

KATHLEEN WEIR

Kathleen is now the secretary to the young vice-president of one of the large firms in town.

ALICE WEST

Alice is now the most noted army nurse we have. She keeps the soldiers happy besides making them well.

JAMES WHEELER

Jim has gone a long way since his high school days. He is in Turkey!

LOULA WHITFORD

Lou is very successful as a typist for a business concern in Boston.

WALLACE WHITTLE

"Wally" is a meteorologist at the Boston Weather Bureau.

DONALD WILLIAMS

"Flash" is in the picture business. He has set up a studio on Great Hill, and is making a lot of money selling the pictures of the subjects found there.

RICHARD WILLIAMS

Dick is engaged in manufacturing ultra-modern alarm clocks. He no longer depends on the 8:15 Lovell Bus.

SHIRLEY WILLIAMSON

Shirley has become a very successful secretary to three successful lawyers.

ROBERT WOODWORTH

"Woody" graduated from Northeastern University and has returned to W. H. S. as a teacher of Physics.

GEORGE WRIGHT

George has just opened his new super-deluxe, ultra-modern, service station.

CHARLOTTE WYSOCKI

Charlotte is now the head model of stockings for the Real Silk Hosiery Company.

EARL YETMAN

Earl has taken Frankie Brimsek's place as goalie for the Boston Bruins. His last minute "save" gave the Bruins the Stanley Cup.

Vocational Prophecy

ROBERT I. BUDD
Budd is now a captain in the Marine Corps down South.

WILLIAM L. CARMICHAEL
Bill is an instructor at a roller-skating rink in Quincy.

JOSEPH F. CLANCY
Joe has taken over the shoe shops in Brockton.

GEORGE A. COBBETT
George is an expert on how to control one's nerves.

CHARLES H. CUSHING, JR.

EDWIN G. DeCOSTE
Edwin is now the head man at the Sheppard's Coal Company.

BERNARD L. DURANT
Bernie is now writing a book entitled "Skipping School Without Getting Caught." Who could know better?

BENJAMIN N. ELLS
Ells is president of a bank in Quincy.

RALPH E. EVANS
Ralph is a truant officer. Need we say more?

CHARLES A. FREDRICKSON
"Fred" has taken over the job of teaching history at W. V. S.

FRED A. HALL
Fred runs his own paper, and is doing swell.

GEORGE W. JORDAN
George is still wrecking metal.

ROBERT F. MANLEY
"Bob" is that way about the ice-man's daughter.

JOHN T. McRAE
John is the instructor of the 100 yard dash at Braintree.

MARTIN NELSON
"Nel" has won the Indianapolis Speedway trophy for two consecutive years.

MILTON NESSON
Milton is now running Paragon Park.

THEODORE F. OTT
Ott is ga-ga about the Weymouth girls, but he comes from Braintree.

FREDERICK G. PATON
Fred is six feet tall, has big eyes and curly hair.

EUGENE M. PETERS
Gene owns his own farm in Weymouth.

THOMAS W. REIDY
Tom has just bought out the Jasan Theatre in East Weymouth.

CHARLES E. SANDERS, JR.
Wink at him girls and see if he will move. Look out.

ROBERT W. SETTERLAND
Robert is now entertaining at children's parties. He does the imitation which he practiced at W. V. S.

ALBERT G. SMITH
"Smitty" likes red that's why the red-head is his choice.

HAROLD S. STAPLES
Staples is still butchering the wood, day after day

ROBERT FRANCIS STENBERG
Bob is flying one of the big bombers for the U. S. A.

WILLIAM E. SULLIVAN
Bill likes the girls. But!

WILBUR E. TRIBOU
Will is the clown of the year.

CHARLES P. WOLFE, JR.
Charlie is now taking a course in muscle building. He says that he'll make Atlas look like a weakling.

Reminiscing

The rain is falling fast without—
A dreary day I fear—
And here I sit, my work undone,
While my mind is far away from here.

The raindrops beat an endless tune,
And through my mind there seems to pass
The happenings of my years at school,
The ghosts of memories now unmasked.

I recall the day I first set foot
Within these learned walls.
A shy and timid one I was,
Alone and lost in these vast halls.

The subjects that year were not so bad;
At the end I achieved my goal,
And when we got our cards that term,
I found I had made the Honor Roll.

The sophomore year for me, I know,
Was the hardest one by far;
The mystery of French I could not solve,
With its "le's", and "la's", and "n'est-ce pas's".

Not quite so bad was the junior year,
With the exception of stenography;
The lines, and circles, and curves, and dots
Were all just empty signs to me.

And here at last is the senior year,
With the study of American history,
Of Washington and Lincoln, and all the rest
Who helped to make our country free.

Dear readers, don't miscomprehend,
I guess I've stretched the work a bit.
Because we had some real good times,
And plenty of laughs while doing it.

Well, this is where my story ends.
The rain is stopping, too;
The clouds have broken up at last,
And the sun comes shining through.

Reflector

Once again the Reflector staff has completed its yearly duties. This year five issues have been published; namely, the Thanksgiving, Christmas, Valentine and Spring issues and the Year Book. All of these issues have been printed by the students of the printing department of the Weymouth Vocational School. In choosing material for each issue, we have earnestly tried to represent each class and to publish the articles with as few changes as possible. We hope that our efforts to produce a high-grade, popular magazine have not failed.

Delegates of the staff have attended the usual meetings of the Southeastern Massachusetts League of School Publications. These meetings have been held at Bridgewater, Plymouth, and North Easton.

We of the staff wish to extend to Mr. Prescott B. Brown, and Miss Helen A. Chase, faculty advisers, appreciation for their constant guidance. To Mr. Harry F. Duncan, the printing instructor, we owe unlimited thanks for his valuable assistance. Also, we are appreciative of the aid of the teachers and the co-operative efforts of the students.

In concluding our duties for the year 1941-1942, we sincerely hope that the future editors and members of the Reflector staff obtain as much joy and knowledge from their work as we did from ours.

Student Council

Each year the entire school votes for the regular members of the Student Council. Assistants to these members are elected from the various home rooms. The officers elected for 1941-1942 are:

President: John Larner
Secretary: Louise Jannell

It is the duty of these members to keep order in the corridors, lunch room, on the school grounds and during fire drills. A fine job has been done by all the members.

On December, 1942, a successful Victory Dance was sponsored by the Student Council with music provided by the "Merlinites."

We sincerely hope that members of the Student Council of the future years will follow the fine example of their predecessors.

Musical Revue

An amusing and impressing revue, "To Thee We Sing" was presented by the glee club on February 20th under the able direction of Mr. John M. Lyons and Mr. James W. Calderwood. Besides the splendid work done by the Weymouth High School Glee Club, Band, and Orchestra, selections were offered by several talented members of the student body.

Senior Play

On May 22, 1942, under the direction of Miss Ernestine Canning, assisted by Miss Helen Chase, the members of the Senior Class presented the three act comedy, "Ever Since Eve".

The play centres around Johnny Clover and the difficulties which he confronts as editor of the school paper, the Penguin. The earnest efforts of Johnny and Spud Erwin to keep girls off the staff present many laughs. The appearance of the Southern charmer, Lucybelle Lee, causes problems to arise in the love life of Susan Blake, Johnny's faithful admirer. As the curtain goes down on the last act, however, all difficulties have vanished and happiness reigns.

Between acts, vocal selections were offered by Martha Gerrior, Cecelia MacDonnell, and Albert Nash.

Orchestra

Under the direction of Mr. James W. Calderwood, the high-school orchestra has again ended a successful year. It has played at several occasions, some of which were the "Star-Spangled Revue" and the Senior Play.

Another successful year is awaited by the members who will continue playing next season.

Band

The ardent Weymouth football fans cannot recall a Weymouth High football game without also remembering the fine exhibitions offered by our band. Under the direction of Mr. James W. Calderwood and Mr. John Ghiorse, the school songs were played and the letters of the home and opposing teams were formed by the band.

The drum major this year was Edith Dorn, assisted by Edith Pratt and Elsie Reagan. Much credit is due to these girls for their fine work.

The officers for the past school year were:

Student Band Master, Bowen Buckman
Secretary, Marie Haviland

At the graduation exercises this year, the band will accompany the Senior Class as they sing, "Anchors Aweigh," "The Marine Hymn," "The Army Air Corps Song", and the beloved alma mater song, "The Cross of Gray".

Good luck and best wishes to your coming band members!

Football

Coach Arlanson turned out another first-rate, undefeated, championship team. Out on the field the team was under the able co-captains Wheeler and Cavallo. Cavallo made a school-boy record for scoring and touchdown points, he missed only twice in the season. The only time they seemed about to lose a game was in the Quincy game, when they tied. They snowed under their traditional Thanksgiving Day opponet. The team was managed by Harvey Chamberlain.

Basketball

The Weymouth High hoop men under Coach "Jack" Gannon had a fairly good year. The highlights of the season were the two games with Chelsea. This year's team did not make the Tech Tourney.

Baseball

This year's baseball season opened with a victory over Brockton by one point. The team then lost a few games. Then the tide turned and Coach Arlanson's boys have been winning. The team consists of:

Sam Dentino, captain, ss.
Jim Wheeler, third base
Bud McKinney, centre
Bill Quinlan, centre
Bob Cote, outfield
Charles Christopher, left field
Frank Cavallo, centre field
Paul Bandini, outfield
Fred Sheehan, first base

Wrestling

The 1941-1942 wrestling team lost the state championship to Quincy by only four points. Their record was not as good as last year's. Mr. Kelly, the coach, was called into the Army during the season, and Mr. Stewart took over his position as coach.

There were, however, four state champions among the grunt-and-groan artists. They were: Ouellet, heavy weight; R. Lysakowski, 133 pound class; Kezer, 123 pound class; Scott, 118 pound class.

Track

Mr. Page turned out another tiptop team this year. Although the team did not come out so well at the State Meet in the indoor season, several Weymouth High records were broken. This team was one of the best ever turned out of Weymouth High.

The record breakers of the indoor season were: Joe MacDonald, the 300-yard run; Joe Hughes, the 600-yard run; and Tirrell Cook, the 1000-yard run. The relay team consisting of Tom Smith, Joe Hughes, Gene Johnson, Joe MacDonald broke the one and two lap relay.

This year's spring track team was the best Mr. Page has had in some time. It went undefeated for the first time in fifteen years. At the state meet the team won 19 points. Gus Hanson won the 100-yard dash championship in 10.5 seconds. Smith won the 220 in 22.8 seconds. The relay team, consisting of: Hanson, MacDonald, Hughes, and Smith made a new Weymouth record in the half mile relay. MacDonald came in second in the 440 yard dash. This team was well worth a lot of credit.

Girl's Sports

In spite of the numerous interruptions that were had during the school year, Miss Hoag and Miss Peterson report that interest in girls' sports was keen.

Tennis was the only sport that was slighted, because of the difficulty of transportation. Basketball and volley ball held their own. Soft ball, played for the first time outdoors on the new field, had a large turn out. Some champion jumpers were found in the Freshman Class, much to the surprise of the others.

Proof of the interest is the number of awards. Besides the twenty-eight numerals awarded, the following W's and stars were earned:

W's	Stars
Dorothy Briggs	Catherine Anderson
Violette Nichols	Eleanor Corey
Mabel Blenis	Jane Tower
Rosemarie Howe
Betty Roche

Trade Basketball

The team started off by losing three of its last season's regulars and by going through the season with a young team that showed possibilities for next season.

We finished the season with a record of four wins and ten losses. One of the bright lights of the season was a one point victory over Norfolk County Aggies, who had just completed their record of seven straight victories.

If the problem of transportation prevents the Vocationals from scheduling games out of town next season, Mr. Klay, our coach, expects to schedule games between the different departments.

The following boys played on the team:

J. Belcastro
W. Sullivan
W. Coveney
J. Ryan
A. Kinsley
W. Andrews

Trade Baseball

Many of last year's veterans were seniors this year. They were all employed in defence industries when the baseball season got under way. Thus Mr. Mahn was left with only the freshmen and sophomores to carry on. Originally eleven games were scheduled but because of transportation difficulties the number was whittled down to five. The season ended with a surprise victory over the Cohasset team, which had an almost undefeated season. There was a triple play and a lot of good hitting to make it interesting.

The whole student body purchased baseball season tickets for twenty-five cents each to help finance the games.

Inter-departmental games were arranged and much interest was shown. All boys who wanted to were given an opportunity to play on their department team. The finals for the winners has not yet been played as this is written.

Press Club

For its second year, the Press Club has completed its duties as an organized school club under the excellent direction of Mr. Paul Cleaves. Under leadership of co-editors Marjorie Mooney and Robert Cady, the Press Club has become one of the school's most popular clubs. It is the duty of the members of the club to collect news concerning the school, its faculty and student body. News bulletins are posted each week in all the home rooms and the Press Club column appears weekly in the Weymouth Gazette and Enterprise.

Clubs and committees were handled by Marjorie Mooney, sports by Rober Cady, personals by Madelyn McIntosh, and general news by Barbara Rodgerson.

Continued success is wished for the Press Club in coming years.

CLASS WILL

We, the class of 1942, amidst the peal of air-raid bells and the sirens of test blackouts, in order to form a more perfect high school, to insure better marks, to provide happiness, to promote good feeling, and to secure the enduring benefits of learning under the blessings of peace and harmony with our teachers, do hereby bequeath the following:

To Room 211, we leave Miss White a box of nuts and bolts to keep her desks and chairs in place.

To the incoming group of seniors, 212 leaves the general spirit of happiness and care-free good will that has prevailed from September to June.

To Room 215, we leave movable chairs so that the boys in there may roam about the room as they please, without having Miss Hale telling them to get back into their own seats.

To Room 216, we leave Ann Sheridan—that the boys may be tempted to attend school more often and boost its failing attendance record.

To Room 217, we leave the dry humor, but the winning ways, oof Mr. Cleaves. We also leave larger chalk trays to keep the floor clean, also a shiny new pencil sharpener, and cleaner windows.

To Room 218, we leave Miss Chase's hope that next year's seniors will always sit down promptly at 2:20 and never call across the aisles when they wish to talk to a neighbor.

To Room 301, we leave a larger inkfiller, well supplied with ink, so that the pupils' inkwells will always be filled.

To Room 304, we leave a new dictionary in the fond hope that it will be compensation for the three battered and torn ones that students vainly try to find words in.

To Mr. Whittle, we leave the memory of the best senior class yet to graduate from Weymouth High School.

To Mr. Lyons, we leave an extra desk and chair for the students who are obliged to use the office for a home room.

To the freshmen, we of '42 leave our class motto "Vigilance, Valor, Victory" with the sincere hope that they hold it before them for their goal, and succeed in it.

To the sophomores, we leave "Stan" Sulis's scholastic ability, "Gus" Hanson's sports ability, Catherine Anderson's ability to make friends, and Carol Cole's personality.

To the juniors, we leave our learning (?) and self-confidence that only seniors have.

To the president of the Junior Class, "Stan" Sulis leaves his ready smile, his popularity, and his ability to pop up with a joke in class.

To the co-captains of next year, we leave the power and ability to "belt" Quincy off the map, and to have another undefeated season.

TRADE SCHOOL

To the next vice-president of the Trade School, we leave Martin Nelson's ready wit and his ability to have an answer for everything that's said.

To Room 5, we leave Mr. Nelson's humor and husky laugh, so that he will keep his 4:00 P. M. companions amused.

With heartfelt love for the younger generation, we do sincerely hope that the above inheritances will prove helpful to the stumbling attempts and occasional blunders of our incoming successors.

"May I Never Forget!"

In trying to discover a new and different idea for the '42 Reflector, We came upon the idea of interviewing various classmates and asking each of them to tell us an incident or two of their high-school career which they'll always remember. Of course, we can all understand that neither time nor space was to be had to interview everyone; so we are listing the experiences of those who seemed most willing to confess:

From 212, Tirrell Cook, more widely known as "Cookie", steps up to say that he never shall forget Mr. Brown as Santa Claus at the Senior Christmas Party. Furthermore, he says that the memory of "Teddy" Roberts, haunted by a pair of red flannels, will be difficult to erase from his mind. But most important of all was a day away back in September, 1939, when he first entered the old "Alma Mater". My, what a huge building!

Elva Dowd, a lass from 215, told us of a rather embarrassing incident. It seems that one bright Monday morning when she was to have physics in her home room. Elva forgot all about the five-minute period of meditation. In complete oblivion, she sat up, doing a little fast and furious, last-minute scanning through her physics book. When the dawn came, the whole homeroom had just finished saluting the flag and were standing with bowed heads in silent prayer. But not Miss Dowd! She was studying her physics! Her studious mind was wishing in vain for a big round hole in the floor.

"Hoot" Gibson, 216, remembers vividly a first-period Latin Class of his freshman year. Unfortunately for him, Coach "Jack" Gannon's basketball team had lost the night before, so the Coach's disposition was not quite sweet. The whole class was sent up to the board to compare an adjective, each trembling under the threat that he would be thrown out, who couldn't do his. "Hoot" seemed to be the one who couldn't do his, so after a thunderous "Get out!", he was preparing to bid adieu, until he was hailed by the words,

"Did you ever hear of an incomparable adjective?"

"No," replied "Hoot" meekly.

"Well, sit down then!"

"Hoot" sat down; quickly, too.

But, speaking of embarrassing situations, "Viv" Olson, 301, has lived through almost the most frightening experience possible. Strangely enough, when "Viv" was a sophomore, she "skipped" one day! (Dreadful thought!) So the next day at lunch, she just had to tell "the kids" about the marvelous time she had had the day before in town with Irene. Of course, she couldn't leave a detail out, and she had to tell it thoroughly, to the best of her ability. She did. She told it so well and so completely, that a voice behind her thought he'd make the story really complete by saying:

"Why, that's very fine, Miss Olson. Very fine. We'll give you exactly six nights for it."

Mr. Lyons always had a peculiar habit of showing up at the right place at the wrong time, or vice versa.

"Aud" Pike, 304, says she shan't forget her junior chemistry "lab" periods, especially one day when she and her partner had their equipment all set up and were heating a solution containing ammonia. When the fumes began to escape, "Aud" was panic-stricken by the feeling that her sense of smell was about to leave her forever. Thereupon, in order to save herself from such a calamity, she dropped everything, to hold her nose. But her act of safety was spoiled by the sight of broken test tubes, funnels, and a class howling with stinging eyes. And still the fumes poured forth. Luckily, a watery-eyed Miss Hale was there to come to the rescue.

"Frannie" Thomas, 304, says she will long get a good laugh over our first air-raid drill even though we all lost ten pounds in our fright. Such a running in and out of rooms, bumping of heads, and winged journeys of unsuspecting books. Everyone looked at everyone else, trying to decide whether to laugh. But very few of us cried, because after all, we did get out of a period, didn't we?

To Don Taylor, 304, his gym periods were the most outstanding. He will look back on them a little sadly perhaps, for it was there that he feels he had the most laughs and fun. Mr. Page rates "tops" with Don as an amiable and fun-loving instructor.

The Junior Party will certainly be a red letter occasion to "Beany" Striano for years to come and why not? He was one of the boys who put on the highly successful style show of young ladies' evening gowns. The show was so successful, in fact, that an encore was demanded. But the encore was unexpected and each was caught off guard, looking silly and feeling worse. Some with a hat and no dress, others with a dress but no hat. But to make a long story short, not "Beany." He was caught in a pair of ladies "lingerie" and "boy"! was he embarrasser!

When Doda Hannabury, 216, was a freshman, she had ideas of her own as to what the various bells meant. The first day we had lunch, Doda decided to be helpful and show a few of her friends how to get around. As soon as the first bell rang, Doda maneuvered them expertly down the corridor in the direction of the stairs. The idea of having separate stairways never occurred to her so away she led them with a becoming air of assurance. But suddenly a noisy torrent rumbled over them, shaking the stairs with a deafening roar. Somehow or other they had entered the wrong stairway, but the next time they waited for instructions!
